Working for hospitals, government facilities, educational campuses, and other spaces that are pivotal to society is an honor.

RMF's value in healthy work-life balance allows me the flexibility to handle personal matters outside of work. They strive to make this the best place to work.

Aside from treating their employees well, RMF's values integrity in it's work. There have been many projects where I have seen a lack of follow-through and attentiveness from others that would have caused bigger issues if it was not for RMF. Being the eyes and ears of the client on a construction site is an invaluable asset for ensuring a project's success and we do not take the responsibility lightly. Working for hospitals, government facilities, educational campuses, and other spaces that are pivotal to society, is an honor. We are behind the scenes ensuring that each of these organizations are able to complete their mission.

RMF is a great company that cares about the employees and helps them succeed.

I started with RMF in 2016 and haven't looked back. Since joining the company, I have been in the unique position to work out of three different offices: Charlotte, Charleston and Atlanta. I have worked closely with 3 different electrical PE's gaining invaluable experience. This has allowed me to grow professionally at a quick pace while living in some cool parts of the South along the way. While the work is challenging and often times intense, the office outings are certainly a welcomed retreat and great time to get to know your coworkers. Man that Charlotte crew knows how to throw a cookout!! Overall, I think RMF is a great company that cares about the employees and helps them to succeed.
